(Carleton Place) – Tomahawk Technologies Inc. is not just a leader in the field of enterprise web solutions. The company is also a leader in its home community.

Tomahawk once again sponsored Carleton Place's Canada Day beach volleyball tournament, held as part of the festivities in Riverside Park. The event has become synonymous with that Ottawa Valley town's celebration of the nations' birthday. This year's event had a bit of a new twist as the tournament took place on the new volleyball court across from the park.

Canada Day celebrations were organized by the Carleton Place and District Chamber of Commerce. Tomahawk CEO and President Robin Mulloy is a member of the chamber and was chair of this year's Canada Day committee.

"It is important to give back something to the community," Mulloy stated. "Tomahawk is pleased to be able to be a contributor to Canada Day festivities in Carleton Place."

For the third straight year, the beach volleyball tournament was won by the team that calls themselves 'Some Volleyball Team.'

Tomahawk is a privately held and profitable high-tech firm that creates enterprise web solutions for companies across North America and is active in local events, charities and organizations. ParkAdmin, a web-enabled parking and security management system, was created in 2001 specifically for a local university and is now installed in campuses across North America.
